In 1930 Calder visited the artist Piet Mondrian in his studio in Paris where he saw his simple paintings of rectangles and stripes in red, yellow and black. He thought it would be good if the shapes in Mondrian's paintings moved, so he went back to his studio and began to work on a series of sculptures that would do this.

Alexander Calder was an American artist best known for his invention of the mobile and his wire sculptures. "My whole theory about art is the disparity that exists between form, masses, and movement," the artist once said. Born to artist parents on August 22, 1898 in Lawnton, PA, Calder turned to art in the 1920s, studying drawing and painting under George Luks and Boardman Robinson at the ...
